[Gunsho Ruiju] [Zoku Gunsho Ruiju]

Compiled and edited by Hanawa Hokiichi, these collections are considered basic and important for study. Gunsho Ruiju holds 1,276 sources and Zoku gunsho Ruiji contains 2,128. He made a comprehensive search and categorization, focusing on scattered and rare documents from ancient to early modern periods, covering topics on legal codes, politics, economy, education, morality, religion and more.

[Zoku zoku Gunsho Ruiju]

Published in Meiji 40 (1907) by Kokusho Kankokai the content is divided into 10 sections including ritual systems, biographies, records, legal institutions, and others. It holds many new additions not found in the earlier collections, of classical texts, old records, and classical studies written and edited in the Edo period. These number approximately 350 books considered important and necessary for various research fields, many are only found in print form in this collection. Total 17 volumes.
