Unit 1 : Heian/Kamakura/Nanboku-chō period [Contents]

* The titles of Heian-Nanboku-chō published in 2021 or later are to be included in Unit 6 "Appendix".

Heian/Kamakura period

Ribuōki [支部王記] [1 vol.] Diary of Emperor Daigo's fourth son, Imperial Prince Shigeakira (重明親王：906-954). The diary is important historical material for studying the political affairs and the Imperial Council of the Heian period. [Recording period]：921 (延喜20年)-953 (天曆7年)

Gonki [権記] [3 vols.] Diary of Fujiwara no Yukinari (藤原行成：972-1027), also known as Fujiwara no Kōzei, a Japanese official and calligrapher. Contains a wealth of important information about politics and court life under Fujiwara rule. [Recording period]：991 (正暦2年)-1010 (寛弘7年)

Taiki [台記] [1 vol.] Diary of Fujiwara no Yorinaga (藤原頼長：1120-56), who was from the Fujiwara clan in the post of imperial regent and was the Minister of the Left. He is also known for masterminding the Hogen Disturbance. [Recording period]：1136 (保延2年)-1143 (康治2年)

Meigetsuki [明月記] [1 vol.] Diary of the courtier and noted poet Fujiwara no Teika (藤原定家：1162-1241), one of the 21 imperial anthologies of classical Japanese poetry (waka). [Recording period]：1180 (治承4年)-1197 (建久8年), including Meigetsuki Catalog

Yōkōki [葉黄記] [2 vols.] Diary of Hamuro Sadatsugu (葉室定綱：1208-72), a Japanese official given an important position by Retired Emperor Gosaga. Valuable as records of Insei (院政; politics by the retired emperor). [Recording period]：1230 (寛喜2年)-1249 (宝治3年)

Kanchūki [勘仲記] [6 vols.] Diary of Kadenokōji Fujiwara no Kanenaka (勘解由小路藤原兼仲：1244-1308), a courtier and archivist. Indispensable for studying the political history of Japan in the latter half of the 13th century. [Recording period]：1274 (文永11年)-1288 (正応元年)

Kinhira-kōki [公衡公記] [4 vols.] Diary of Saionji Kinhira (西園寺公衡：1264-1315), who was promoted to the Minister of the Left and served as a liaison between the imperial court and the shogunate. [Recording period]：1283 (弘安6年)-1315 (正和4年)

Hanazono-Tennō-shinki [花園天皇宸記] [3 vols.] Diary of Emperor Hanazono (花園天皇：1297-1348). These writings are important for studying the culture and the circumstances of succession to the throne at the end of the Kamakura period. [Recording period]：1310 (延慶3年)-1332 (正慶元年)

Nanboku-chō period

Entairyaku [園太暦] [7 vols.] Diary of Tōin Kinkata (洞院公賢：1291-1360), a grand minister of state (dajō daijin). A great resource for learning about the Nanboku-chō period, when two rival courts existed. [Recording period]：1311 (応長元年)-1360 (延文5年)

Moromoriki [師守記] [11 vols.] Diary of the 14th-century courtier, Nakahara Moromori (中原師守). The diary is valuable because it contains not only the records of that time but also many precedents. [Recording period]：1339 (暦応2年)-1374 (応安7年)

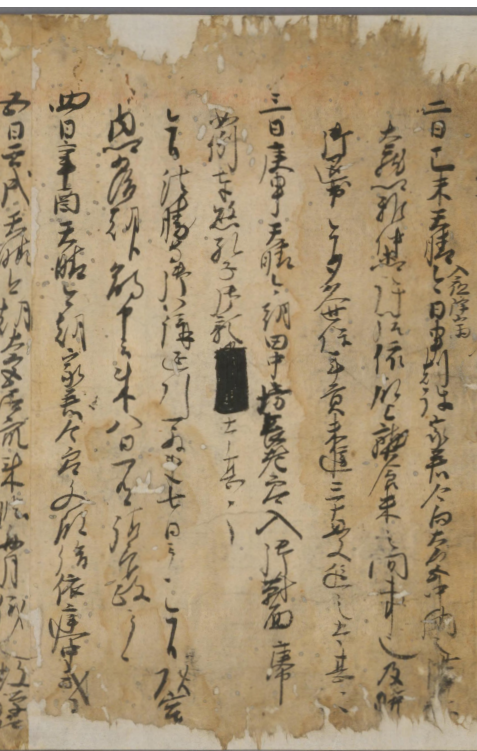

Kōyōki [迎陽記] [2 vols.] Diary of Higashibōjō Hidenaga (東坊城秀長：1338-1411), a scholar who served Emperor Go-En'yu and Emperor Gokomatsu of the Northern Court. First-class materials for studying the politics and arts of the time. [Recording period]：1379 (康暦元年)-1401 (応永8年)

Kanenobu-kōki [兼宣公記] [2 vols.] Diary of Hirohashi Kanenobu (広橋兼宣：1366-1429), an official who was the liaison between the imperial court and the shogunate in the days of the third and fourth shogun of the Muromachi Shogunate. [Recording period]：1387 (至徳4年)-1424 (応永31年)
